Charles is an associate within the Corporate and Infrastructure Development group working on both Dubai and Omani client matters. His primary practice involves assisting a wide range of corporate clients on matters including, joint ventures, acquisitions, commercial agreements, lease agreements and service agreements.

Charles also advises on strategic energy and infrastructure projects, most notably in the water and power sector. He has gained a strong understanding of the required procurement processes for infrastructure projects in the Middle East. This experience was recognised by leading legal directory Legal 500 EMEA 2017, in which Charles was named as a "Next Generation Lawyer" for Oman Projects and Energy.

Charles is also active in the Dubai office's flourishing hospitality practice, where he advises numerous clients in the food and beverage industry on their routine corporate operations.
